History of the House

Designed by Miklós Ybl, the water house has a history of more than 140 years. Built in 1875, the facility was originally responsible for supplying the Royal Palace with water, but later functioned as a café, a music and dance club, a rehearsal room, and a casino. After a renovation which took almost a year, the plans for the YBL Creative House were born in spring 2018. It aimed at turning the Grade 1 listed historic building, a World Heritage Site, to be suitable for artistic and cultural gatherings. In April 2019, the long-awaited gastronomic partner has arrived at Ybl's favourite water house, called FELIX.

FELIX Kitchen & Bar

An iconic meeting point in the heart of Buda, where contemporary art and unique gastronomic experience go hand in hand. A restaurant with a fabulous panorama, dazzling interiors and high quality - the impression is flawless. This is the perfect recipe for a unique event venue.

The background features a repeating pattern of intricate line art. It includes gears of various sizes, some with long arms, set against a backdrop of stylized floral and scrollwork motifs. The design is symmetrical and detailed, with a central focus on the text.
